The Terrence Higgins Trust provides services (information, advice and support) to people affected by HIV/AIDS in the Oxfordshire area. Projects include the promotion of good overall sexual health through discussion groups and information distribution. Volunteers are able to participate in different activities such as fundraising, planning and running sessions and doing outreach work with staff teams. They are invited to use their own initiative, take the lead in running projects and make suggestions for new projects and practices.

Terrence Higgins Trust volunteers should be open minded, especially with regards to sexual matters, and should not be easily embarrassed or judgmental. One volunteer will work specifically in the Gay Men's Team, and as such will need to be male (but of any sexual orientation).
